

AGILE FOR INDIA

Unique, simple and indigenous technology
– from an wholly Indian company

There are many things that are in favour of Agile other than the fact that it is an Indian company and has invented a technology that is poised to change the face of information technology. Simply put, the Agile Enterprise Engine brings manifold benefits that none can boast of:

Cost: Agile e-Governance solutions are affordable. Quick & Simple – Saving considerable money and time.

Connectivity & IT Infrastructure: Agile e-Governance solutions does not always require broadband/costly infrastructure – make do with dial-up!

Security: Agile incorporates widely used security methods and frameworks to maintain high level of data security. As secure as the best.

Customization: Agile is highly flexible & can keep up with changes with new government policies and frameworks. Change easily and change fast, whenever the need arises.

Low Skilled Operators: User-friendly interface and navigation flow does not require expert operators. Does not intimidate users.

A TESTIMONY

“Agile has set up the e-infrastructure for our operations that spans more than 53 depots spread over 29 districts; more than 6000 products of over 180 suppliers spread across Karnataka, India and the world. They have enabled the practical application of the concept “De-centralised operations with Centralized control” enabling a seamless blend of operational and strategic decision-making to be done on the same information platform.

“The system solution is solid, secure, robust and reliable. It is amenable to integration with other software systems. Their ability and willingness to integrate systems developed by other developers (in our case, by the NIC-Karnataka) confirms the versatile nature of their systems and profusely speaks volumes about their confidence in their technological solution and their willingness to work with other technology partner organizations that our company is associated with.

“What is particularly striking about the Agile Labs team is their attitude of maintaining continuing relationship with their customers on a long term basis not through imposing themselves with software and systems that make them indispensable but by their friendly support services which is not just desirable but affordable. Simply put, they are good people to be friends with but even better business partners.

“During the commencement of the Excise Year in 2006, when the Wholesale system of liquor vending was abolished and the clients increased from 300+ to 7000+ and again, during the commencement of the Excise year 2007 when the vending of arrack was abolished leading to instantaneous doubling, tripling and in some cases even increasing sales more than five times in a single day, their handling of the systems support has our grateful appreciation and that of the entire liquor industry in Karnataka.”
